SHOWBIZ AND POLITIX — or, rather politix and showbiz: Attorney Chris Sautter, who won fame as Al Gore's recount adviser at the Florida countdown and has been known in national political circles as "The King of Chads," had a successful showing of his "The King of Steeltown" a political expose, at the N.Y. Intl. Independent Film & Video Festival. The pic, which he directed, wrote, produced and financed, screened in L.A. at the Laemmle Music Hall. Now Sautter's readying a dramatic feature — not a documentary — on the life of Richard Joseph Daley, who was elected mayor of Chicago for six terms, from 1955-1976 (he died in office, Dec. 20, 1976); he served longer than any other person as Chicago's mayor ...
